WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK'S 75th ANNIVERSARY

W

elcome to friendly Fenway Park and its 75th anniversary year. Generations of families have come here from all over New England since Fenway Park opened in 1912. A family atmosphere has grown along with the tremendous fan support over the past 75 years.

Fenway Park has undergone cosmetic changes throughout the years, but the playing field is about the same today as it was in 1934. That winter new owner, Thomas A. Yawkey, put the park through a major reconstruction phase, and also began to rebuild the team back into a league power.

In 1936 the 23-foot-tall screen was put above the famous left-field wall, the bullpens were constructed in front of the right-field bleachers in 1940, and arc lights were installed in 1947. After the 1975 season, another construction project resulted in the messageboard in centerfield, plus a rebuilding of the left field wall, with padding added around the outfield walls as a safety measure. The luxury suites were built atop the grandstand roof in 1982-83, and improvements were made in restrooms and the ticket office this past winter.

The Red Sox have been an important franchise since the American League was founded in 1901. The team's nickname was the Pilgrims then, and home games were played at the Huntington Avenue grounds where Northeastern University now stands. In 1907 the Red Sox nickname was adopted, and then in 1912 the new Fenway Park became a reality.

Red Sox fans have shown tremendous loyalty and have always been known for their appreciation of quality performances whether by the Red Sox or our opponents. Fenway Park has been the site of many of baseball's most historic moments and finest individual performances. Your wonderful support has been a part of those cherished moments.

The diagram on page 42 shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 44 show the various methods and routes leading here. We urge you to use the public transportation facilities as often as possible to come to and from the ballpark during our 75th anniversary year.

COACH

WALTER JOHN (WALT) HRINIAK #33

Age: 43, Turns 44 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: No. Andover, Mass.

This is Walt's 11th season as a Red Sox coach. He is the club's hitting instructor and first base coach, a role he was given by Mgr. John McNamara last year. A keen student of the game, Hriniaak devotes many hours instructing and assisting Red Sox players. He is still recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in baseball despite surgery for shoulder problems.

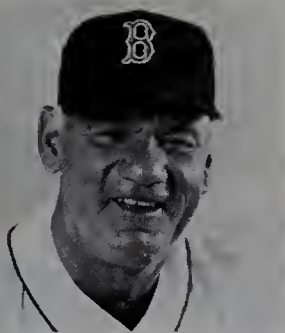

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniaak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniaak signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

He conducts a hitting school for youngsters for several weeks in the off-season.

COACH

WILLIAM CHARLES (FISH, BILL) FISCHER #34

Age: 56; Born: October 11, 1930, Wausau, Wis. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 210. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Council Bluffs, Iowa. Married Valeria Hager.

The Red Sox had one of the best pitching staffs in the majors in 1986 and Bill Fischer was a key reason. Bill is the club's pitching coach for the third year. He is a diligent worker who advocates "throwing strikes."

Fischer came to John McNamara's staff from Kansas City where he had been a minor league pitching instructor in 1984. Prior to that assignment Bill was the pitching coach for Cincinnati where he worked with McNamara in 1979-82 and with Russ Nixon in 1983.

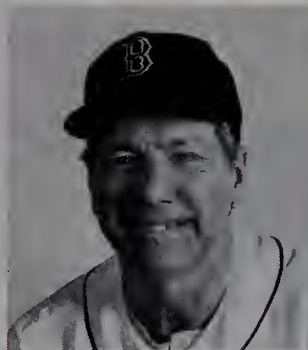

Fischer was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1948. His pitching career lasted 20 years, which included nine seasons in the major leagues. Along with the White Sox he also pitched for Detroit, Washington, the Kansas City A's and Minnesota. Bill served in the Marine Corps for two years (1952-54).

Fischer is known for his outstanding ability to throw strikes. He holds the major league record for most consecutive innings without giving up a base on balls, 84.1. In 1965 he pitched a 1-0 shutout for Indianapolis in which 70 of his 90 pitches were strikes.

Bill was a scout for the new Kansas City Royals from 1969-74 and was their minor league pitching instructor from 1975-78. After his stint in Cincinnati he returned to the Royals in 1984 serving in the same capacity as he did when he left. In 1976 he received the Ewing M. Kauffman Award for his outstanding contribution to the Kansas City organization.

COACH

JOSEPH MICHAEL (JOE) MORGAN #35

Age: 56; Born: November 19, 1930, Walpole, Mass. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180. Green eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Left. Home: Walpole, Mass. Married Dottie Glebus. Children: Cathy 10/15/58, Joe Jr. 7/17/63, Bill 7/7/64, Barbara 12/23/66.

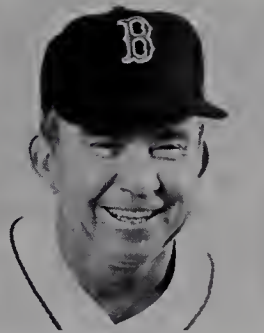

Now in his 36th professional year, Joe joined the Red Sox as first base coach in 1985 after spending two years as a Boston scout. He became bullpen coach in 1986 and then took over the third base coaching position in 1987.

Morgan joined the Red Sox organization in 1974, and managed Pawtucket from 1974-82. In 1977 he was voted International League Manager of the Year. Before joining the Red Sox, he began his managerial career in the Pittsburgh system. Morgan managed at Raleigh (1966-67), York (1968-69), Columbus (1970) and Charleston (1971 & 1973). He captured Manager of the Year honors in 1966, 1969 and 1973. Joe was a coach with the Pirates in 1972.

A graduate of Walpole High School and Boston College (1953), Joe signed with the Boston Braves organization in 1952. He spent 15 seasons as a minor league infielder-outfielder, with three .300 seasons. Morgan had short stints in the majors with the Milwaukee Braves and Kansas City A's in 1959, Philadelphia and Cleveland in 1960, Cleveland in 1961 and St. Louis in 1964.

COACH

RACHEL W. (RAC) SLIDER #36

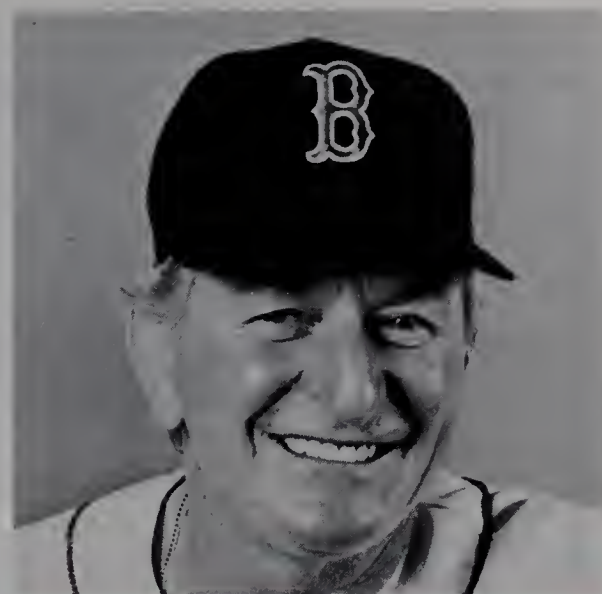

Age: 53; Born: December 23, 1933, Simms, Tex. Ht.: 5-8; Wt.: 160. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: DeKalb, Tex. Married LaMena.

1987 is Rac's first major league season. It was a well-deserved promotion for Slider, who will be the Red Sox bullpen coach. He spent 34 straight years in pro baseball, the last 26 in the Red Sox system, as a player, manager and instructor.

Last season Rac was a roving instructor in the minor league system after 21 consecutive years as a manager. He managed AAA Pawtucket in 1985 and AA New Britain in 1983-84. He led New Britain to the Eastern League playoff championship in 1983, and produced pennants at Greenville, S.C. (1970) and Winter Haven (1979). Slider was named manager of the year in 1970 and 1979.

He originally came up through the Kansas City A's farm system and had a major league trial with the A's in the spring of 1959. Rac's best years as a player were 1955 (.320 for Pampa in the West Texas-New Mexico League) and 1961 (.300 for Honolulu, PCL). He was traded to the Red Sox organization in 1962, and played two more seasons before starting his managerial career at Harlan, Ky. in the Appalachian League in 1965.

Slider is a 1951 graduate of James Bowie H.S. in Simms, Tex. and still lives and ranches in East Texas in the off-season.

MANAGER

JOHN FRANCIS (JOHN) McNAMARA #1

Age: 54, Turns 55 June 4; Born: June 4, 1932, Sacramento, Cal. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 175. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass. Married Ellen Goode.

The Red Sox overcame the dire predictions of most baseball experts to win the 1986 American League pennant and come within one out of the World Series title in the hectic seven-game meeting with the New York Mets. John McNamara's perseverance, faith in his pitching staff and desire to win were important ingredients in the team's success formula.

In July McNamara was rewarded with a two-year extension of his contract and a selection as a coach on the American League All-Star team. At season's end he was voted A.L. Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America and co-Major League Manager of the Year with the Astros' Hal Lanier by The Sporting News.

The Red Sox finished 95-66 to win their first Eastern Division title since 1975 and came from a three-to-one deficit in games to overtake the California Angels for the right to meet the Mets. McNamara used 55 different batting orders during the regular season, 22 different starting players and 10 different starting pitchers. Despite the loss of key members of the pitching rotation (Bruce Hurst, Al Nipper and Oil Can Boyd) for lengthy periods, McNamara's Red Sox moved into sole possession of first place to stay on May 15 and fought off each challenge the rest of the year.

On Oct. 18, 1984 McNamara was named the 36th manager of the Red Sox. He replaced Ralph Houk who retired after four years at Boston. McNamara is starting his 14th full year as a major league manager. Only Sparky Anderson (Detroit) and Gene Mauch (Angels) hold seniority over him among A.L. managers.

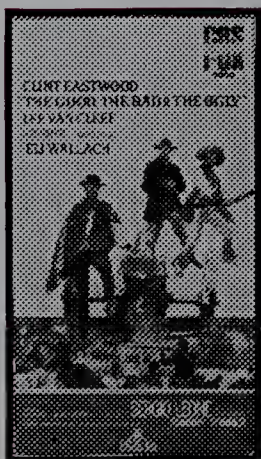

McNamara managed the California Angels for two seasons. In 1984 the Angels finished in a second place tie with Minnesota at 81-81. In 1983 injuries crippled the Angels and they finished tied for fifth at 70-92. They were in first place as late as July 10, 1983.

McNamara was a minor league manager for nine years in the Kansas City A's organization before being named a coach with the A's in 1968 when they moved to Oakland. He has been in the major leagues ever since as either a manager or coach. John made his major league managerial debut with Oakland when he replaced Hank Bauer, Sept. 19, 1969. He led the A's to a second place finish in 1970.

The Pan Am Shuttle invites you to swing at a few pitches Eastern wouldn't dare throw.

The Pan Am Shuttle,SM the official airline of the 1986 World Series, invites you to compare shuttles with Eastern.

So on your next shuttle flight to New York, we suggest you try Eastern on one segment. Then try us on the other. Our flights depart on the half hour from 6:30am until 9:30pm, Monday to Friday, with a modified schedule on the weekends. And to help you, here are a few things you may want to scout out.

Scout these mileage programs

- ☐ When you fly The Pan Am Shuttle you can accumulate mileage in your American Airlines AAdvantage[®] account. And after just 60,000 miles, you can get two free coach tickets to Europe with a choice of 33 destinations. And when you enroll in Pan Am's WorldPass[®] program, you can earn valuable WorldPass awards.

and their mileage program.

- ☐ On Eastern, you can't earn mileage in your American Airlines AAdvantage[®] account. And to get two free tickets to Europe you need 80,000 miles to get a choice of just 1 destination. London.

Scout our check-in

- ☐ Our Instant Check-InSM is as easy as 1-2. Step 1, just go to one of the automated ticketing machines, or stop by the Service Center to get your ticket and boarding pass. Step 2, give it to the agent at the gate. (Or if you're running late, just go to the gate.) Easy, isn't it?

and their check-in.

- ☐ With them, you can go to their machine, then go to another counter to get your seat assignment, then give your boarding pass to the agent at the gate. And wait, it's not over yet. Then give your ticket to the flight attendant once you're on-board the plane. Whew!

Scout our legroom

- ☐ On our flights you have more legroom. So sit back, relax, and stretch out.

and their legroom.

- ☐ And since you can't stretch out on Eastern, well, just try to find a comfortable position.

Scout our free extras

- ☐ When you fly with us, you have your choice of The Wall Street Journal, The Boston Globe, The New York Times and USA Today. And we give you either a breakfast snack or an appetizing serving of fruit, cheese and crackers along with complimentary beverages.

and their free extras.

- ☐ On Eastern you can get USA Today. But you can't get The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times or The Boston Globe. Of course, you could always buy your own copy. And on their mid-afternoon flights, what they call snacks are really called peanuts.

Scout our service

- ☐ Once you compare, and their service.

- ☐ we think you'll see there's no comparison.

THE EARLY YEARS

Four days after his 30th birthday bore him to a rich inheritance of land, lumber and mining interests, Tom Yawkey stepped forth and saved the Boston Red Sox.

It was hardly a fashionable act in that bleak February of 1933, the bottom of the Depression. The banks were crashing, the bread lines were booming, and the Red Sox were reflecting on their 14th consecutive second-division finish, nine of them in last place. There could not have been a more uninviting investment in all of the economic ruin of America. The team was wretched and its ballpark was a shambles.

Yawkey suffered through one more season of humiliation; a seventh-place finish, 34 games astern with an average attendance of 3,500 gluttons for punishment per game. Whereupon, he set to work.

With the aid of his pal, Eddie Collins, he charmed the gracious but bankrupt Connie Mack out of Lefty Grove, Max Bishop and George Walberg for a couple of Punch and Judy operatives and $125,000 in cash. Grove would injure his arm before his first Red Sox start and was never again the invincible character of legend, but the deal established the Yawkey disposition to spare no expense in the pursuit of flamboyant characters to keep us amused, no matter where the team might finish.

part two of three:

1933-1966

by Clark Booth

Then he set to work rebuilding the park, and in a sense it was Fenway's most amazing moment. It was an astonishing spectacle, costing him an estimated two million dollars, twice what he'd paid for the whole ball of wax just a year before. And he did it without regard for the horrible economic climate which featured family men grubbing for apples on street corners for a nickel apiece.

He ripped out all the wood seats, tore down the pavilion, extended the bleachers to the wall, hacked more seating area from the rightfield corner, chipped away most of "Duffy's Cliff" at the base of the leftfield wall, replaced the wood wall with a taller one made of sheet metal, replaced everything made of wood with steel and concrete, added six thousand more seats in the grandstands, rebuilt the playing field, added drainage, and gave the knights of the keyboard their first real press box.

He was dauntless. Not even a four-alarm fire that destroyed his new bleachers in January of '34 could foil the project. They opened against Joe Cronin's Senators, defending American League champs, April 17, 1934, losing 6-5 in 11 innings. At the end of the season, a rousing fourth-place effort, Player-Manager Cronin was obtained for the then astronomical sum of $250,000 (plus shortstop Lynn Lary), and the Yawkey epoch was officially under way.

It may have been tainted, if you measure it merely in terms of pennants won or those that should have been. But in the larger sense of serving as an agent of baseball's enormous capacity for joy and myth, Yawkey was matchless. And always at the core of his infatuation with the game was his little emerald of a ballpark.

He tinkered with it over the years. His importation of right-handed sluggers, only beginning with the purchase of Jimmie Foxx in '35, established the team's trademark; a passion for power. It also obliged the addition of a 23-foot high screen to the 37-foot wall in left; a concession to the shopkeepers on Lansdowne Street and their glass windows. In 1940, the bullpens were installed in

by Larry Whiteside

He has always been his biggest critic. Roger Clemens knows the meaning of success. And he's not afraid to pay the price that goes with it.

The eyes of the entire baseball world will be on the 24-year-old Red Sox righthander this year, and that's okay with Clemens. He welcomes the challenge of overcoming the "Cy Young jinx," and shrugs off any pressure that might come from being last year's Most Valuable Player in the American League.

"I don't care who you are," said Clemens. "You've got to come in and prove yourself again. I start the year 0-0 like everybody else. I'm a nobody and I've got to prove myself just like anybody else."

The record will show that Clemens started the year 2-2. The fine edge that a year ago allowed him to get off to a 14-0 start en route to a 24-4 season was dulled by a contract problem that wasn't resolved until the end of spring training. Whether he can match his 1986 season, the finest since Ron Guidry in 1978, remains to be seen. But Clemens is willing to do his best, and if it helps the Red Sox to another A.L. championship, it will be a worthwhile year, no matter what his personal record is.

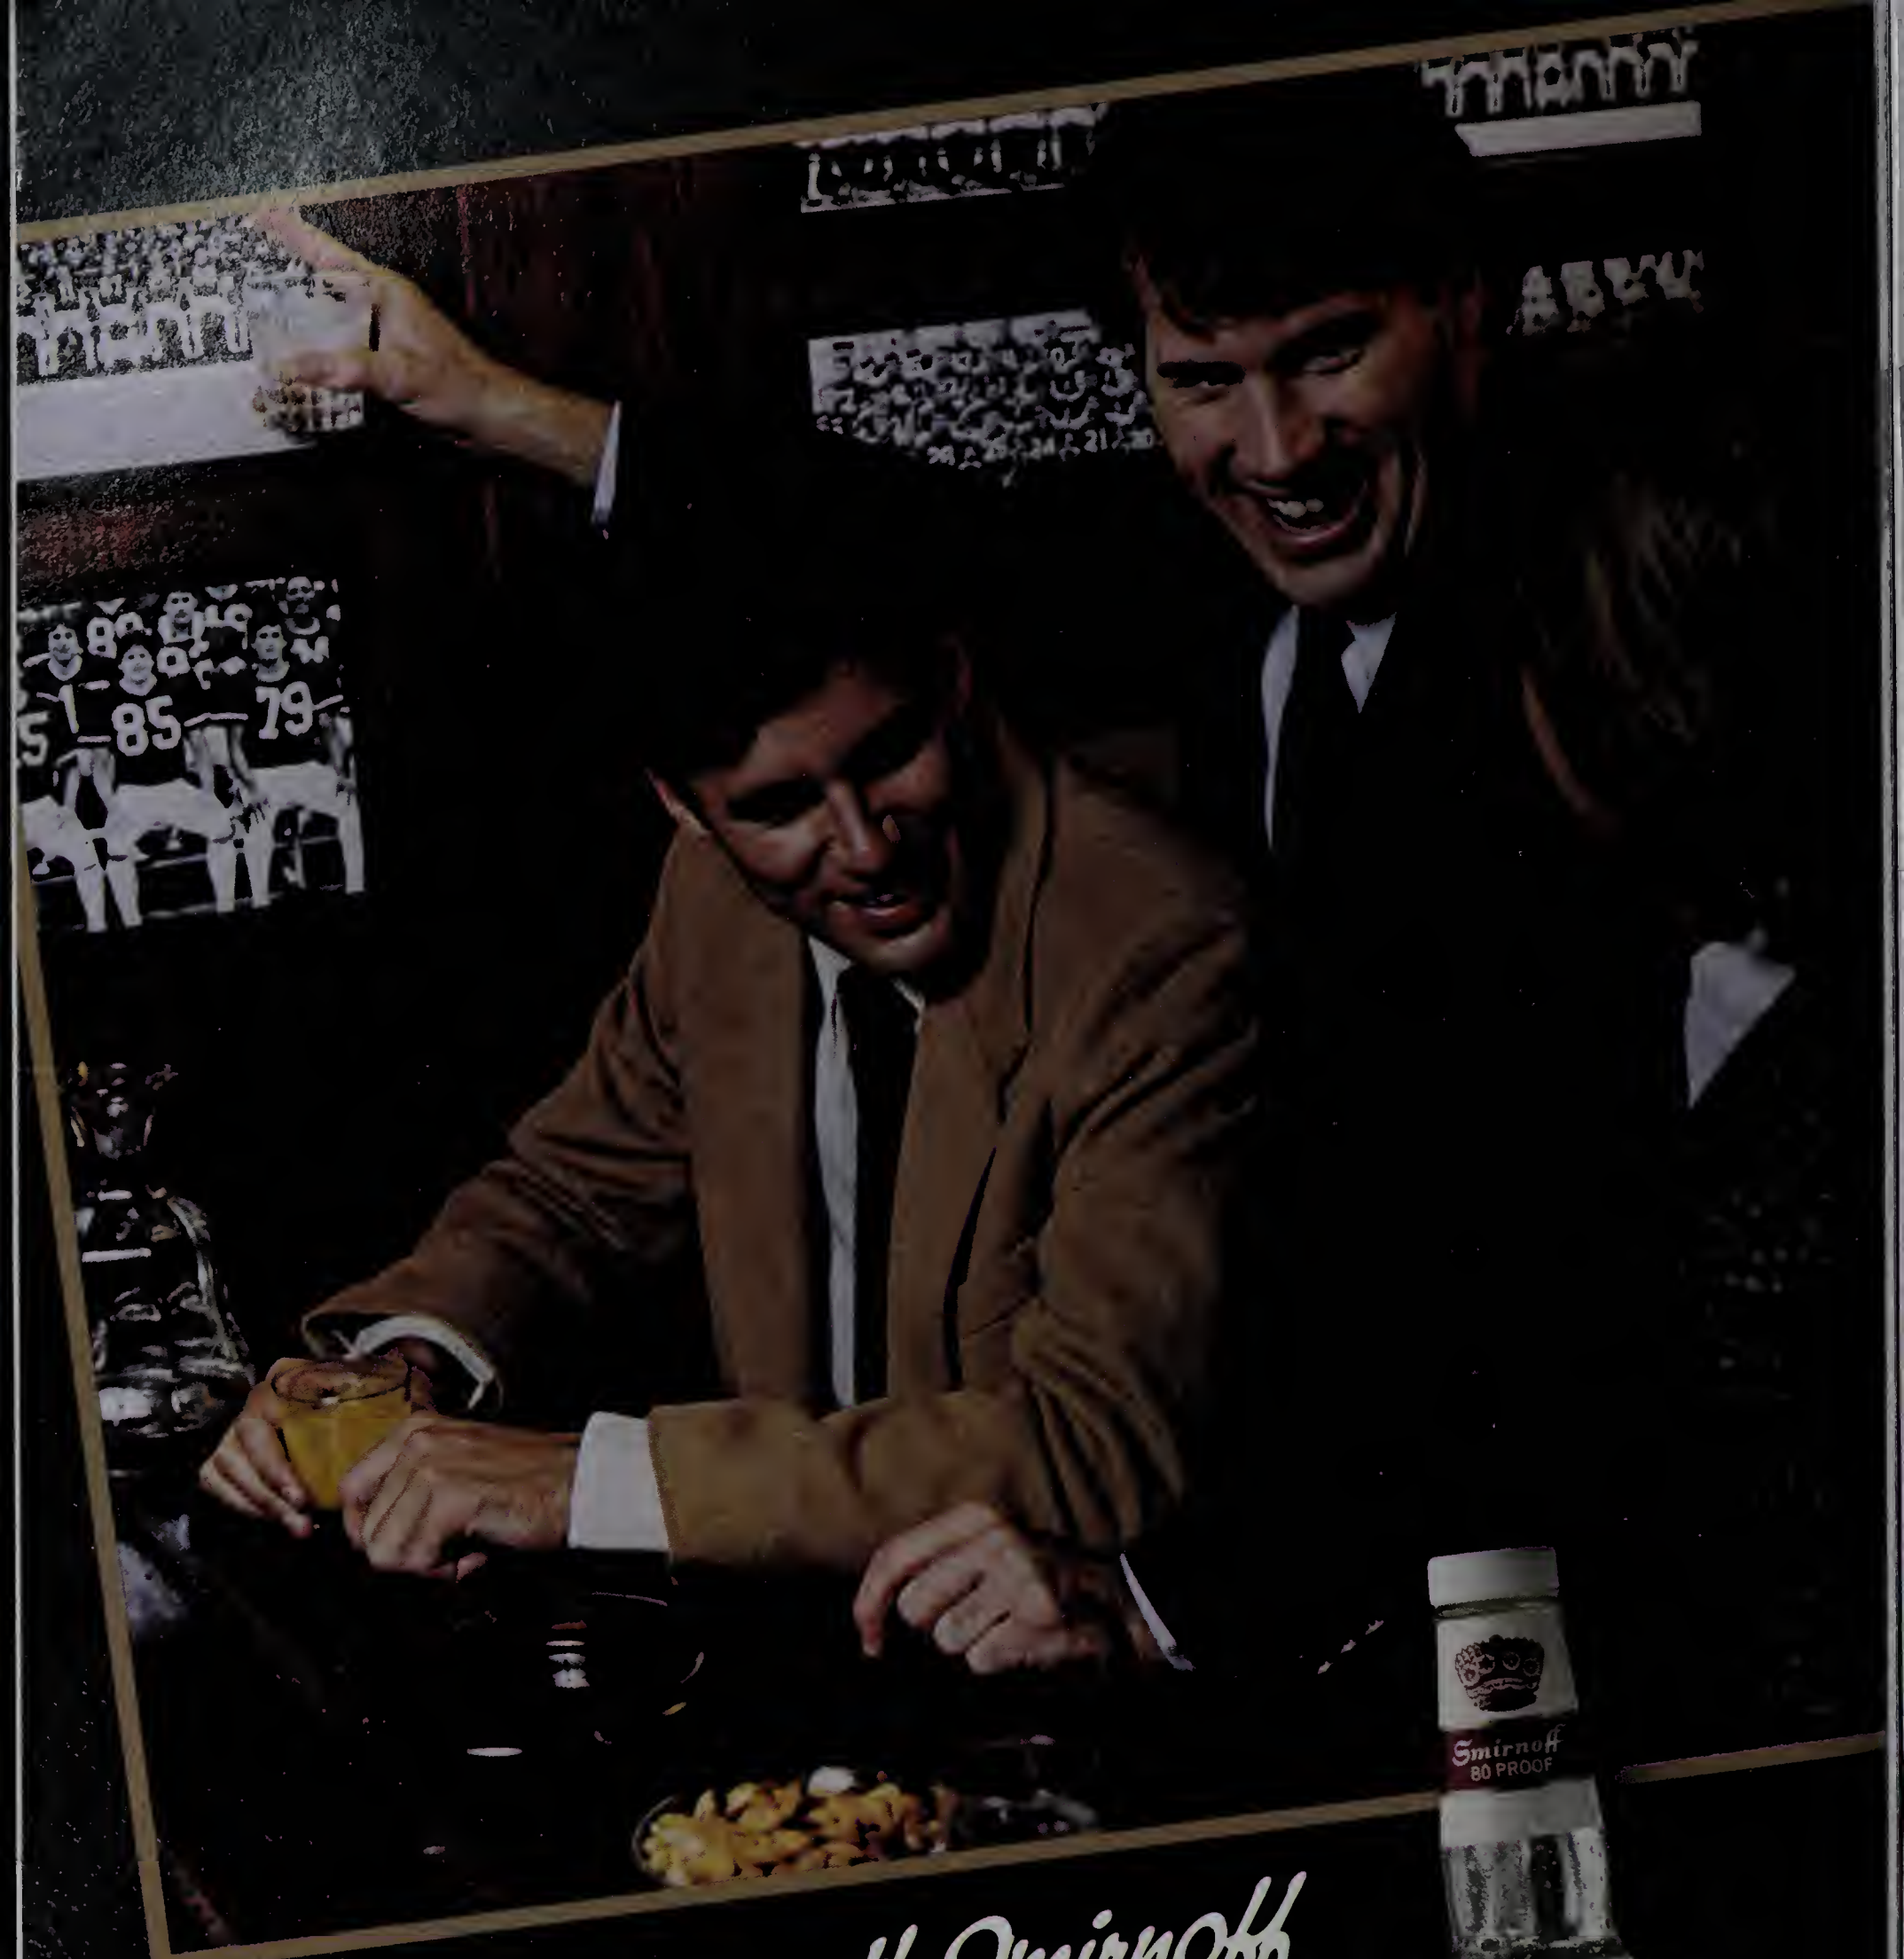

"I don't feel that the layoff hurt me," said Clemens who has always prided himself on his condition habits, during and between seasons. "I don't see a lot of problems in trying to accomplish what I've always done. That's to be consistent and win."

After holding out 29 days, Clemens returned to Fenway Park and received a standing ovation from the fans, who showed they were solidly behind the young pitcher who carried such a heavy burden in 1986, and was able to shape his future in a manner that was acceptable to both he and the Red Sox.

"I didn't want what I did to affect the fans. I knew if I wasn't out there, they wouldn't have the team they wanted on the field. I can understand that part. I do see both sides.

"But I had to do what was best for me, put all the decisions together and come out with the right answer. I did come out with the right answer. All I wanted was to be recognized for what I did on the field. I put a lot of hard work into what I do. They recognized that situation and that's how it was resolved."

Putting together any kind of numbers that are comparable to a year ago will be difficult Clemens admits. Nobody likes to think about the sophomore jinx. But it happens more often than he would like to admit.

"I am superstitious. And you can put me up against the jinx, I guess. But I hope the MVP will offset it. Some guys treat newspapers like a bible, see the negative things and get down. I believe you've got to be as positive as you can. You can turn it around in a matter of one or two starts.

"I think a pitcher can establish momentum from the first inning on and let that carry over to his hitters. I didn't have it my first few outings, but it is slowly coming together now. I was thrown into a situation where I have to win, and I know that people are counting on me to do that. All I can do is do my very best."

It took more than one or two starts in 1986 for Clemens to make his presence felt. There were legitimate concerns as far back as spring training that a man coming off shoulder surgery should be brought along slowly. But Clemens never bought this theory, and once he took off, managed to not only turn his career around, but also that of an unheralded Red Sox team that defied destiny and marched to the American League championship and the World Series.

Most people now have forgotten that a year ago in spring training, Clemens was a large question mark. He was a young Red Sox pitcher coming off career-threatening shoulder surgery, and a .500 season would have been acceptable.

Clemens did so much better than that. As he soared to a 14-0 start, it was clear he had made one of the most remarkable comebacks in baseball history. As the season went on, his fame and his impact on the ball club grew and grew. He struck out 20 Seattle Mariners on April 29 at Fenway Park, earning what many now feel will be the first of many notches in baseball's Hall of Fame.

The 14-0 winning streak ended one frustrating July night in Fenway Park, when Clemens lost to Toronto, 4-2. But by the All-Star break, he was already 15-2. He celebrated the mid-season break by leading the American League stars to victory in his hometown of Houston and was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Clemens won the important games. Few pitchers faced the kind of pressure that began to mount every time he pitched the rest of the way. With the Red Sox struggling on a West Coast swing in mid-July, Clemens won two of the three games on a 3-9 stretch and it proved to be the catalyst that kept the club together until they returned to friendly Fenway Park, where they resumed their winning ways.

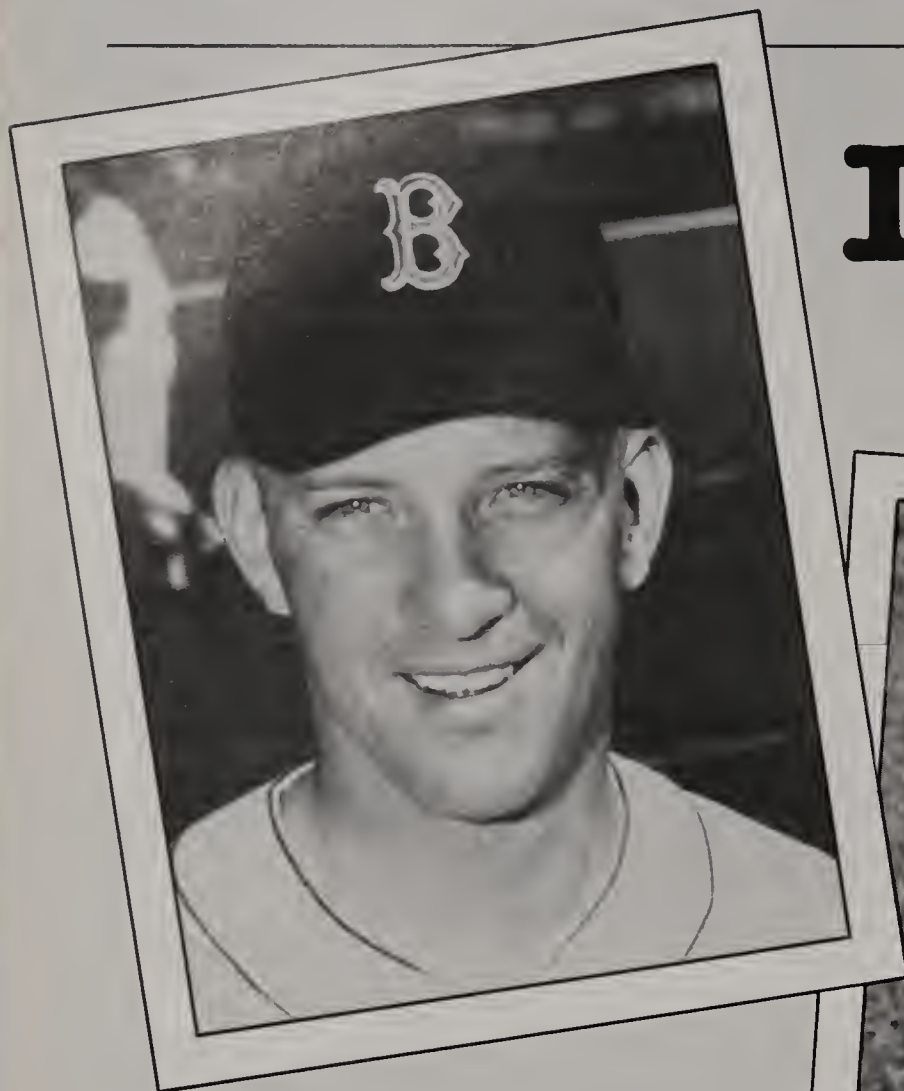

Clemens acknowledged the pressure. But he also responded in the championship style that has become his everyday manner.

"I think a lot of people had the idea that something was wrong with my arm," said Clemens of the operation that cut short his 1985 season. "There was never anything wrong with my arm, and to tell the truth I was throwing the ball around 88 miles an hour even when I was hurting.

"The operation was to remove the pain in my shoulder, and once that was done, I went to work building it back up to where I knew it should be. I've never been afraid of hard work. I'm my own biggest critic.

by Dick Dew

THEN: He recalls being the first occupant of Dick Williams' famed doghouse, but he can't remember the origin of his longstanding nickname. He is Lee "Stinger" Stange, a member of the Impossible Dream pitching staff two decades ago and presently minor league pitching instructor for the Boston Red Sox.

Stange, or "Stinger" as he has always been known, has been in organized baseball since joining the then Washington Senators' organization in 1957, but the highlight of his varied career was by far the 1967 season.

"I'd been in the majors for a few years, but 1967 was a new experience, a fun year in which four clubs were close to first all season.

"We'd made a lot of trades in 1966, and we felt we had a pretty good ball club. And in 1967 everything all came together. We stayed close and finally realized we could win it all. There was amazing camaraderie and everybody helped, somebody different every day.

"Yaz had a phenomenal year, a season nobody had had before, and nobody has had since. He did it all, and

"I've always been that way. When I was young, we had a lot of negative things happen in my family. There were a lot of hard times. But we stayed together as a family, and still managed to keep our heads above water.

"After the year I had, there were coaches and people coming out of the wall saying they helped me do this or that. There was nobody with me at 11 o'clock at night, helping me do my running. My friends in high school and college were partying while I was running. Don't compare me to guys who live their lives differently off the field, and to the way they go about their work. I'm me. I have my own ways of work and my own style."

The Clemens style is a spectacular one. He is a power-pitcher deluxe, whose 24 victories were the most by a Red Sox pitcher since Mel Parnell went 25-7 in 1949. In leading the Red Sox to the A.L. title, Clemens topped the league in wins (24) and winning percentage (.857), and was second in strikeouts (238).

Perhaps Clemens was less than sensational in the American League playoffs, where he beat California in game seven, 8-1. And he was overshadowed in the World Series by teammate Bruce Hurst. But there is no denying he was the emotional lift that earned him the trust and respect of his teammates, and got the Red Sox to the threshold of a World Championship, which was won by the New York Mets. Boston didn't win the World Series. But after the season, Clemens won the two biggest awards in sight.

Can Clemens be the emotional lift the Red Sox need for a pennant in 1987?

"I don't know if I'm going to put up a 24-4 year. But I do plan to contribute and put up whatever numbers I can. I'm not the only guy on this staff. If I have a good year, and everybody has a good year, we're going to win some ball games.

The Elder Statesman

by Win Bates

ometimes, it seems like Dwight Evans has been the only rightfielder the Red Sox have ever had. Other times, it seems like it was only yesterday that Evans was a raw rookie with the Red Sox, joining the team in the midst of the torrid 1972 pennant race.

Either way, it's been an outstanding 15 years that Evans has patrolled Fenway's right field, one of the toughest right fields to play in all of baseball.

The Elder Statesman

Evans is the elder statesman of this Red Sox team in point of service. He came up from the Sox Louisville farm club in September of 1972, played both right and left fields in the pennant race that went down to the next to last day of that season in Detroit, and he's been here ever since.

The statistics he has compiled are that of the top-flight veteran ballplayer who has given his team consistent and outstanding service.

He is third in games played in Red Sox annals and will top the 2,000 mark this season. He is fourth in home runs and will pass 300 this season. He is fifth in at-bats, and will pass 7,000 this year. He is fifth in RBI and will pass 1,000 this year. He is fourth in doubles, runs scored, and extra base hits, fifth in total bases and third in walks.

In this day of players bouncing from team to team, Evans has spent his whole professional career in the Boston organization, beginning back in 1969.

"Sure, it means something," said Evans.

"I'm glad I've been able to play this long in the major leagues, and I'm even happier that it has all been with the Red Sox."

I've enjoyed it. To play that long with one team just doesn't seem to happen any more. It's been a lot of fun. There have been good times and some bad times, just like anything else in life."

His career in a Red Sox uniform began on a Saturday afternoon in September of 1972. Sox manager Eddie Kasko was looking for outfield help, and it was decided that Evans, a top prospect in the Red Sox system, could help the club in the battle with Baltimore and Detroit for the American League East title.

As Evans tells it, "It was my first game, and it was in right field with a full house watching. The first ball that came to me was hit by Tom Mc Craw. It was a line drive, and the sun was tough. I saw it most of the way, and made a diving catch. The fans gave me a standing ovation and that was some feeling."

Evans didn't get a hit that day, but got his first major league hit the next day against Gaylord Perry. That was the beginning for Dwight Evans.

"It was exciting, coming up like that right in the middle of a tight pennant race. It made me feel good that they had the confidence in me to bring me up and play me right away in that situation. I was able to contribute some big hits, and some big catches, and it was a great feeling. I had been in a pennant race in Louisville, but didn't play in the finals because I was called up to the Red Sox. I remember the hit off Perry because I hit the ball off the wall, and when I got to first, the leftfielder was throwing the ball to second."

RED SOX

PLAY-BY-PLAY

RED SOX GAMES COME TO YOU
ON RADIO AND T.V.

BY WAY OF CAMPBELL SPORTS,
TV-38 AND NESN CABLE.

Red Sox fans will once again receive coverage on both radio and television in 1987 via one of the most extensive broadcast schedules in the major leagues.

The Campbell Red Sox Baseball Radio Network is again carrying every game with Ken Coleman and Joe Castiglione sharing the microphone for the fifth season. The partnership between the Red Sox and Campbell Sports is also entering its fifth year and is slated to continue at least through 1990. WPLM-FM in Plymouth, Mass. is the flagship station of a network of over 75 stations which blankets New England.

Coleman has more than 36 years of broadcasting experience and has covered the Red Sox on radio and TV for 18 years. The Quincy, Mass. native began his career broadcasting the Rutland (Vt.) Royals of the now defunct Northern League. He then went to Cleveland where he did the Browns (NFL) for 14 seasons and the Indians for 10.

In 1966 Ken returned to Boston for his first stint with the Red Sox (1966-74) on both radio and TV. After covering the Cincinnati Reds on TV for four years, he came back to Boston for the 1979 season on radio, and has been here ever since.

Ken has announced seven NFL championship games on network television and also did the 1967 World Series on NBC. He has been involved with the Jimmy Fund since 1966, and is now its coordinator for donor relations.

Castiglione is in his fifth season on Red Sox radio. Like Coleman, he previously covered the Cleveland Indians (1979-80-82) on both radio and TV. He worked the Milwaukee Brewers' games on cable TV in 1981. The Hamden, Conn. native has announced the Cleveland Cavaliers (NBA) on cable, and has done college basketball for New England Sports Network the past three winters. He is a graduate of Colgate University.

Every Red Sox game will also be shown on television this season, with TV-38 carrying 75 games and New England Sports Network (NESN) showing 85 on cable. The other two games are scheduled on network television.

TV-38, along with its New England network, is in its 13th season of Red Sox coverage, with Ned Martin and Bob Montgomery together for the sixth year.

Martin has been covering the Red Sox on TV and radio for 27 consecutive seasons, including the last nine with TV-38. Only Ernie Harwell of the Tigers (28 years) has been with one club for a longer consecutive span.

Ned began his broadcasting career in Charleston, West Virginia, covering the American Association team there for five years. He joined Curt Gowdy in Boston for the 1961 season and has been here ever since, working with ten different partners in that time.

Martin announced the AL playoffs on CBS radio four years, and also did the 1975 World Series on television for NBC. The Duke graduate is also an accomplished football announcer, having done play-by-play for the Patriots (1965), Dartmouth (7 years), Harvard (6 years), and Yale (2 years).

Montgomery has been on the TV-38 crew for 6 seasons. He was a valuable reserve catcher for the Red Sox, appearing in 387 games during his 10-year major league career. He signed with Boston in 1962 and came to the majors in 1970. An arm injury forced his retirement during spring training in 1980.

Monty did a local radio talk show, as well as some work on Red Sox radio broadcasts, prior to joining the television team in 1982.

NESN is covering the Red Sox for the fourth year, with Martin and Montgomery handling the announcing chores for the third season. NESN rebroadcasts each of its Red Sox games as a convenience for its subscribers who may have missed the live telecast. Evening games are shown again at 11:30 p.m., while afternoon contests are rebroadcast at 7:30 p.m.

GIVE A TRADITIONAL DRINK A WHOLE NEW SPIRIT.

The notion of ordering a Screwdriver with rum rather than vodka may sound odd.

But let it sink in a moment, because it makes a lot of sense.

You see, not all vodkas are aged for smoothness. Rums from Puerto Rico are.

They are the only rums that are aged by law for a minimum of one year. And if given proper time, a rum will become mellower and smoother.

So with maturity guaranteed, our rums not only add a fine, distinctive taste to orange juice, they're as right for tonic as any gin or vodka.

And they're as appropriate on the rocks or with soda as any whiskey.

Put us to the test. Who knows, you may start a whole new tradition.

And that can be a very refreshing experience.

THE SPIRIT YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

It's Easy to Keep Score

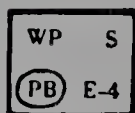

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

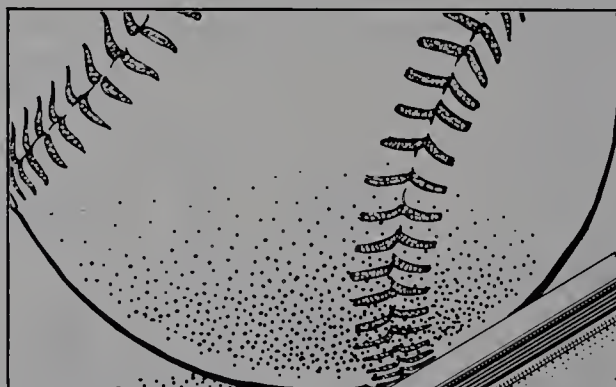

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB
Double	=	Hit by Pitcher	HP	Balk	BK
Triple	≡	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	≡≡	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

FENWAY PARK GROUND RULES

Foul poles, screen poles and screen on top of left field fence are outside of playing field.
Ball going through scoreboard, either on the bound or fly: 2 Bases.
Fly ball striking left center field wall to right of line behind flag pole: Home Run.
Fly ball striking wall or flag pole and bounding into bleachers: Home Run.
Ball sticking in bullpen screen: 2 Bases.
Batted or thrown ball remaining behind or under canvas or in cylinder: 2 Bases.
Ball striking bevel on the wall between the foul pole in left field and the corner back of the flag pole, and bounding into stands or out of park: 2 Bases.
Ball striking top of scoreboard, also ladder below top of wall and bounding out of the park: 2 Bases.

Spontaneous combustion.

We engineered the Mitsubishi Starion ESI-R with one fundamental principle in mind: Internal combustion should be shared by both man and machine. So we built the Starion to be an authentic Sports GT. With a 2.6-liter engine that's turbocharged and inter-cooled to deliver a pulse-throbbing 176 hp.

Of course Starion's unique experience is not built on power alone; precision handling is also mandatory. And Starion's 4-wheel independent suspension is fully up to the task with its front and rear stabilizer bars, power-assist 4-wheel vented discs and speed-rated high-performance tires.

Mitsubishi Starion ESI-R. Power and performance that's been patiently crafted to ignite your imagination.

Experience the new Mitsubishi Starion ESI-R, along with all the other 1987 Mitsubishi cars and trucks, at your New England Mitsubishi Motors Dealer.

In Evans' career here, he has played on one team with a losing record (1983). All the rest finished .500 or better and most have been division-title challengers. The two pennant-winning teams, 1975 and 1986, are the ones he remembers the best.

"I really feel that last year's team was the best I've played on in terms of togetherness. Both teams had some great players, but we probably had more talent in 1975. We had (Jim) Rice, (Fred) Lynn and myself in the outfield. We had (Luis) Tiant, (Bill) Lee, (Rick) Wise, (Rogelio) Moret in the rotation. (Carlton) Fisk behind the plate.

"Last year's team was real close. I'd say it was the closest team I've been on. Playing together, working together, pulling for each other, that's what made what we did last year so special. We had talent last year, but it was that togetherness that made that team."

Those two teams were involved in disappointing defeats at the end, just when the teams were close to World Championships. Certainly no one can point a finger at Dwight Evans in those defeats, as he played brilliantly in both World Series.

Against Cincinnati in 1975, he hit .292 with a home run and 5 RBI. The home run tied Game 3 in Cincinnati in the ninth inning, the game ultimately made famous by the non-interference call when Ed Armbrister bunted in front of the plate and bumped Fisk as he was throwing to second in the 10th inning.

Last October against the New York Mets, Evans led the Sox with 9 RBI and 2 HR, and hit .308. But the defeat still bothers Evans.

"I still haven't watched the World Series films. It was hard to get over it. I saw the film of the fifth game of the playoffs (the dramatic win in Anaheim), but not the Series. But now, it doesn't matter. It was last year, and we have to put all of our energies into this season. You don't live off last year. It's tough to be defending champions. Everybody tries a little harder to beat you. They save their best pitchers, their best players for you."

Evans has been able to deal with the highs and lows of the game, so important in having a successful career. He credits Carl Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli as two of many people who have helped him in this regard.

"Yaz really helped me a lot as far as on-the-field things go. He was a great example to everyone."

You'd see him barely able to walk, but when the game started, he was out there. He kept himself in shape. That's something I learned from him, because I've kept myself in shape. From Rico, I learned a lot about how to deal with things on and off the field."

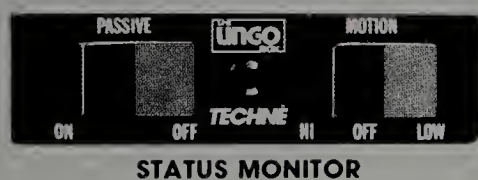

Evans says he also is using the way Yaz and Rico treated him as a barometer as far as how he treats younger players coming up now.

"They always treated me fair. Oh, I went through all the rookie things, but they both treated me like a man right from the start. What I try to do now is one-on-ones with the other players. You get the most out of a player that way. And I try to be an example on the field. You have to show them that even when things aren't going well, they can't hang their heads. You don't sulk and you don't get down when you're not going well."

Evans has always been a good example of hard work. He has always put in the time that it takes to continue to be a top-notch player, and that hasn't changed. You'd think that a 15-year veteran of the big league scene might slack off, yet Evans and fellow veteran Don Baylor are two you'll see most often working before the game under the center-field stands in the batting cage with hitting coach Walt Hriniak.

"The game doesn't get easier and as you get older, it gets harder. A lot of guys think they work hard at the game, but they put in time more than anything else. When I'm working before a game, I'm working on specific things. I have fun at it, but I also get something accomplished. I think it's important to have fun, but get your work in while you're doing it."

Evans has been one of Hriniak's prize pupils since mid-July of 1980, when Hriniak helped Evans become an even more productive hitter than he had been. Since that time, Evans has tied for the league home run title and led the American League in total bases (1981) and had a 100-RBI season (1982). Evans and Mike Schmidt are the only major leaguers to hit 20 HR each of the last six years.

"Walter and I have worked almost every day during the season the last seven years. We probably haven't missed more than a half dozen days in that time. Some days, you feel like 'Not today, not today,' but you can't think like that. Walter has a couple of philosophies that seem to apply well. He says that it's not really practice makes perfect, it's 'practice perfect makes perfect.'

"The other is that it takes a long time to develop a good habit, but just one swing to lose it. You can spend a month developing a good habit and lose it in one day."

There would seem to be no reason for Evans to hang up his spikes any time soon. He's still one of the most productive players the Sox have. But he says he's not looking beyond this year.

"I just take it one year at a time now. If I find that I'm not productive any more, I won't play. But I don't feel I've had my best year yet. I don't know what my best year is, but I'd like to feel it is still ahead of me. When I feel I have no more left to give, I'll get out."

But that time appears to be some time away for the elder statesman who has performed so well for so long for the Red Sox.

A mama believes that food is love. That it should taste as if it were stirred and simmered and watched and worried over for hours. A mama does not believe such food can come from a microwave oven.

Not, at least, until a mama meets the Sharp Carousel® II Convection Microwave. It doesn't just cook fast, it cooks well: with a turntable for even cooking, convection for beautiful browning, and a sensor and an automatic temperature probe for precise cooking.

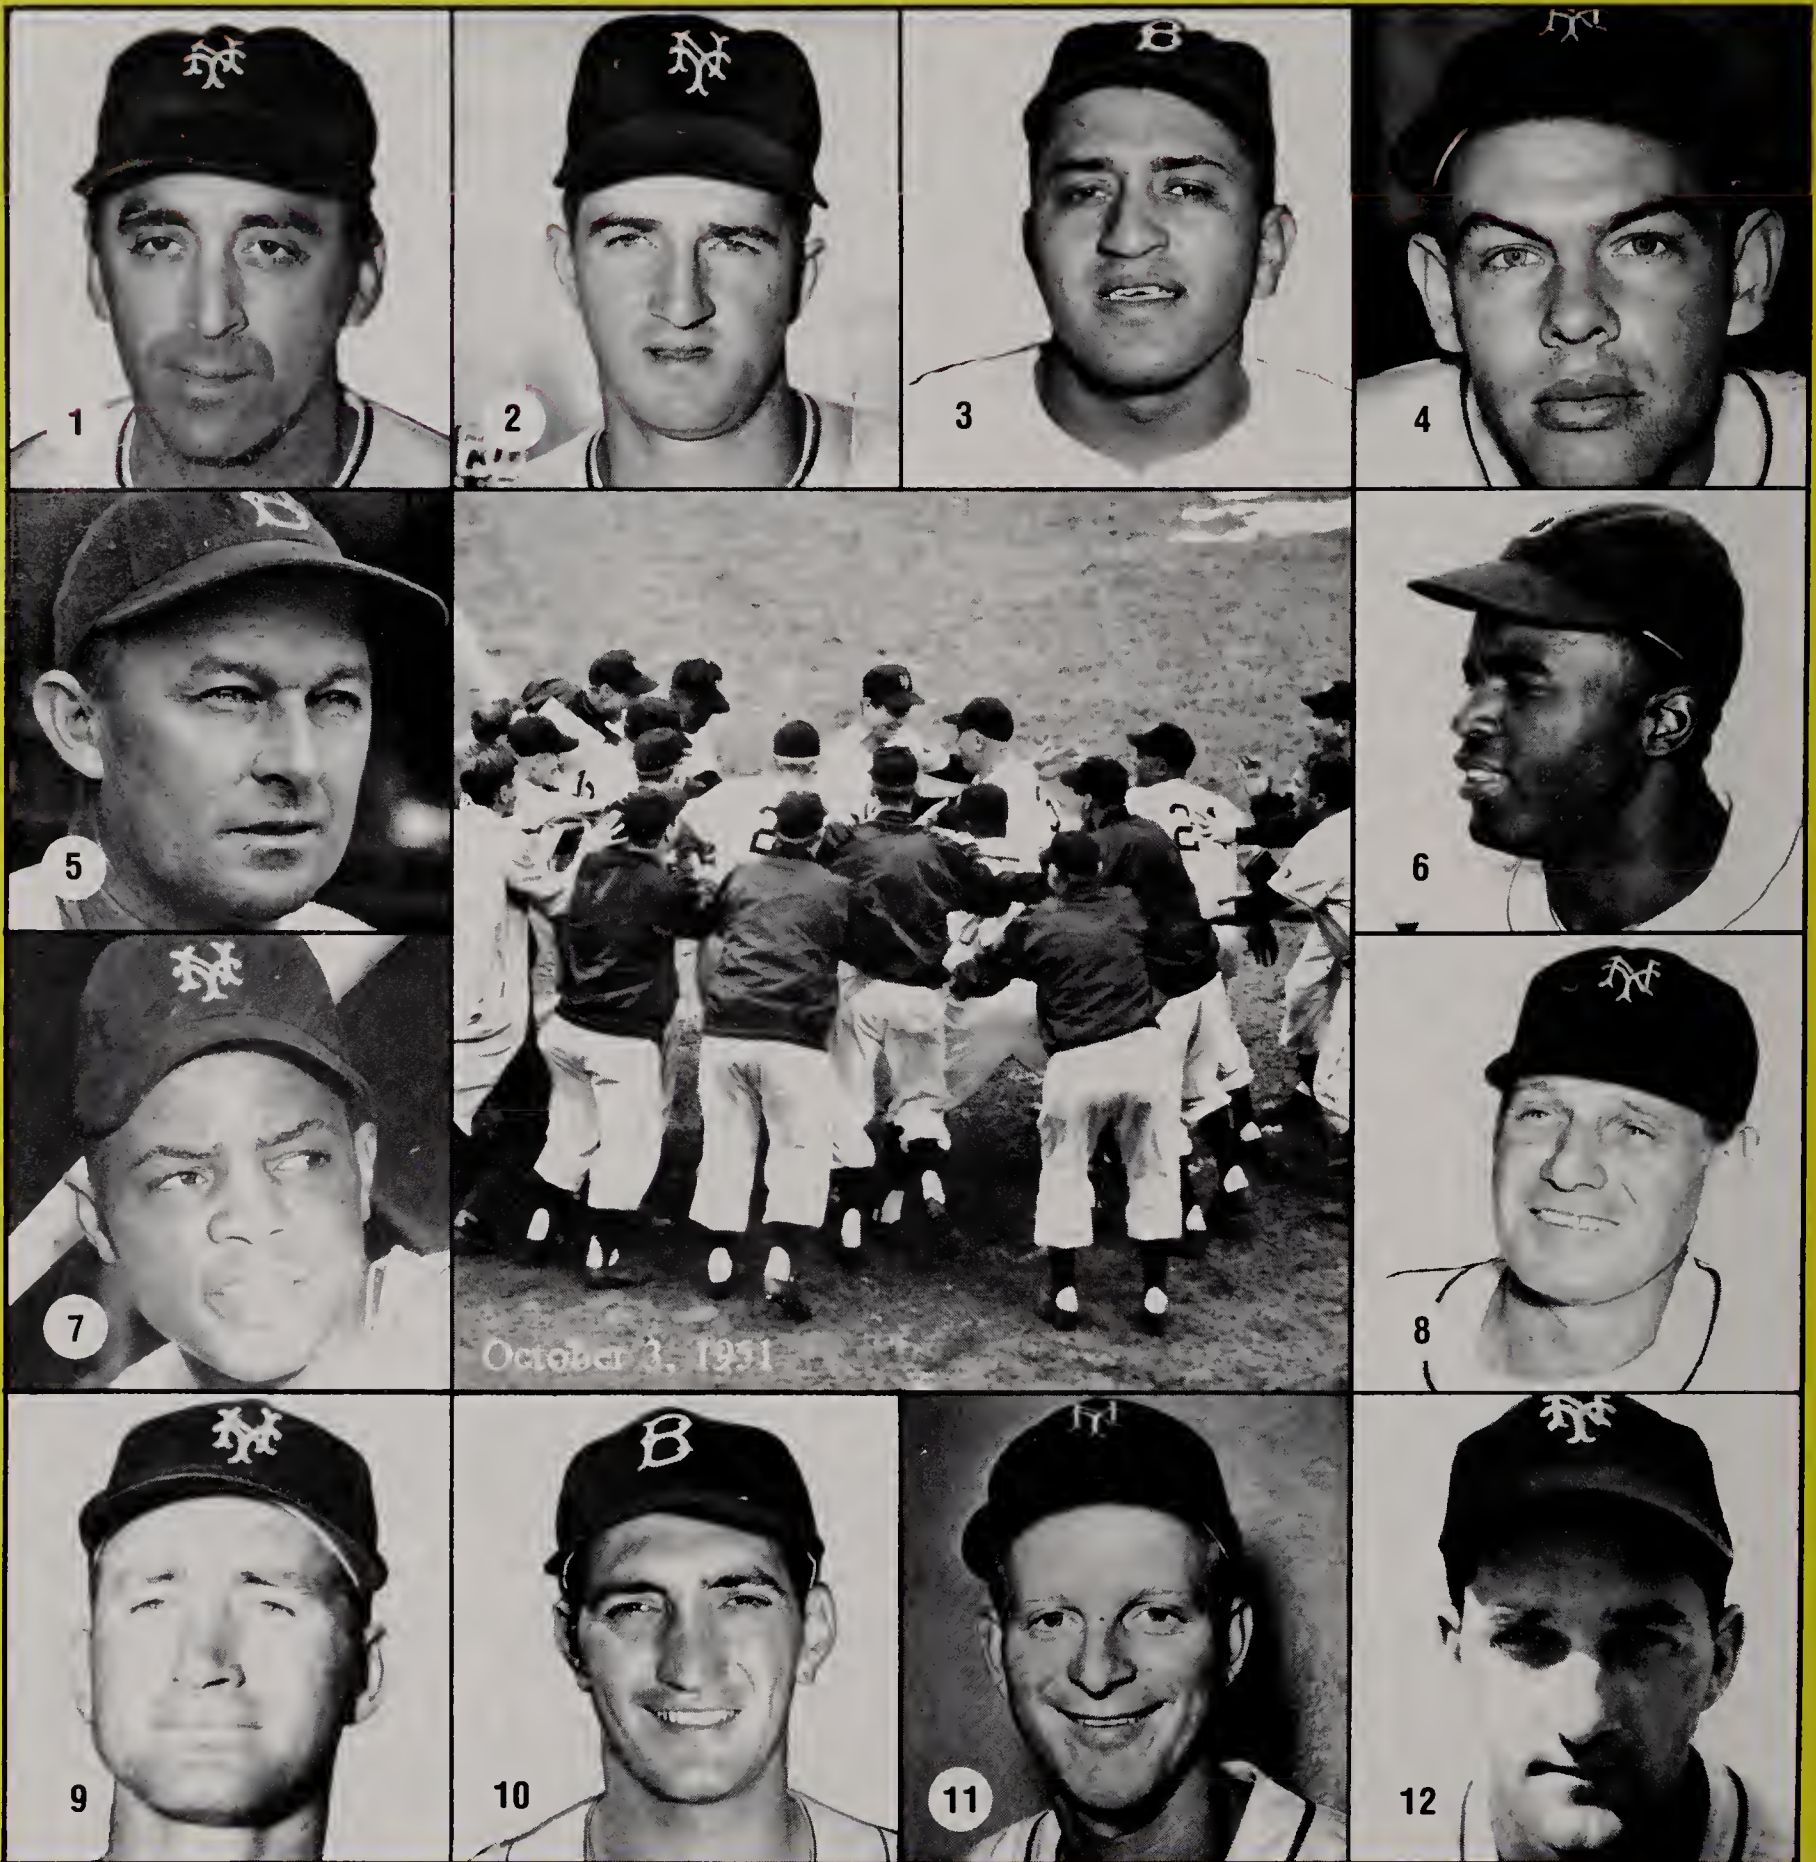

With all the turning and testing and checking and coaxing done automatically, it's the perfect microwave for mamas who always have more love than time.

there was always somebody else ready to step in and contribute.

“I was the original member of Dick Williams’ doghouse. I was supposed to start the opening game in Boston, but he got mad at me for laughing in the back of the bus.

It wasn’t me, but he thought it was, and I stayed in there for about three weeks. He wouldn’t even talk to me. I never even got the call to warm up. But a lot of guys followed me into that doghouse before the season was over.”

Stinger escaped Williams’ poodle palace in time to appear in 35 games that season, 24 as a starter, with six complete games. He managed an 8-10 overall record, an impressive 2.77 earned run average, picked up a save in relief, and had two strong innings of relief in game three (“one unearned run”) for a rare 0.00 ERA in the World Series.

NOW: Stange, a little heavier than the 5-foot-10, 165 pounds of his playing days, has bounced around a bit since his 10 seasons of active play ended in 1970. Most of his bounces landed him back in the Boston organization.

Presently listed as the minor league pitching instructor, he divides his time among Boston’s four full-season minor league clubs, along with a tour at spring training and a few looks at the partial-season team.

His credits since retiring as an active player include a year as minor league pitching coach with Boston; three seasons as the parent club’s pitching coach under Darrell Johnson and Eddie Kasko; a year as major league pitching coach with the Twins; another as minor league pitching coach with Oakland, a season in which he managed the A’s Pacific Coast League Tucson Toros farm for the final two months when a dead-last team went from as much as 30 games to three games under .500; three seasons as major league pitching coach for Oakland; a return to the Red Sox organization with some scouting on the West Coast and minor league pitching coach duties; four more years as Boston’s major league pitching coach and the past couple of seasons as minor league pitching instructor.

Stange’s three children are all in college. Elder son Timmy is a senior at California Lutheran, a pitcher who missed most of his junior season with injury. Two UCAL-Santa Barbara students, sophomore son Jimmy, and freshman daughter Jana, are both soccer players.

“I look for young pitchers who have the good, strong arm and to be sure they have the proper mechanics. After that, I look hopefully for the curve and the changeup.

“I look for pitchers who can give you six or seven strong innings and relievers who can pick them up.

“I wasn’t a power pitcher myself, my best was the curve and changeup.” Stange was best known for his tenacity in battling American League hitters and for his control as he compiled a nearly 2-to-1 strikeout to walk ratio and a 62-61 career won-lost record.

THIS IS THE SEASON TO BE A WINNER!

There’s nothing like it... the feeling you get when you know you are doing your best and are appreciated for it. When you are part of a respected team that is known for its professionalism. The Red Sox feel it every time they run onto the playing field. You can feel it too, when you work at Brigham and Women’s Hospital.

People who work at Brigham and Women’s say they like it here because it is a truly progressive environment. They also like the competitive salaries and the excellent benefits package. Right now, we’re looking for Allied Health Professionals, Nurses, Secretaries and Entry Level Personnel.

So be a winner this season. Come talk to the pros at Brigham and Women’s. Call 732-5790 to find out more about existing opportunities.

MEMORIES: Stange insists he can't remember the origin of his "Stinger" nickname but guesses it was simply a takeoff on his last name.

"Maybe when I hit a batter, it stung a little bit. I've had it as long as I can remember and maybe that's where it came from, I really don't recall."

Stange spends most of his off-season in California and most of his in-season with Boston's Triple-A farm club. He also visits Fenway Park on occasion and has remained in baseball because "I still enjoy the game."

Where he once hated spring training, he finds it a lot of fun now and insists he gets a kick out of throwing "a lot of BP" (batting practice), during the lengthy stay in Winter Haven.

"I still enjoy all of it, just as I did when I was playing. I even got a kick out of short relief, coming in with men on base and trying to get somebody out to win a ball game. They made me a short reliever in 1968 and I had a lot of fun then, too."

Stinger's "fun" that year involved 50 appearances, 48 in relief, where he compiled a 5-3 record with a dozen saves in 103 innings.

"Even though the World Series in 1967 was a kind of anti-climax, we gave them (the Cardinals) a pretty good run. I still wish I had gotten in a few more innings, but it was such a great year I have no regrets."

"It was a year in which everybody played well, maybe even above their heads."

"That's something else I try to teach our young pitchers now, to be ready, to stay ready. That was a big thing we all learned that season. We were expected to go nine in my day but now we train relievers to pick up the starters."

Stange knows a good deal about the present Boston pitching staff, many of whom he dealt with as they came up through the Red Sox system, so he was familiar with them as they blossomed into the staff that helped get the club back to the American League championship last season.

He does not, however, offer any advice to the hitters in the organization.

"Not with my hitting history," he jokes of his .079 career batting average. He does have a place in the record book, however, for tying the mark by striking out four batters in one inning for the Indians against Washington in 1964.

THE EARLY YEARS

It has been estimated that Yawkey's first pennant, in 1946, cost him about four-million dollars, that being the aggregate of all he'd spent refinishing the park and populating it with exorbitant purchases.

Ironically, it was the relatively modest sums belatedly invested in the scouts who discovered Williams, Johnny Pesky, Bobby Doerr, Dom DiMaggio, Dave Ferriss, Mickey Harris and Tex Hughson that finally produced success.

Fenway hosted the All-Star Game, for the first time, in 1946. Williams dominated it with a pair of homers including a shot into the bullpen off one of Rip Sewell's allegedly undriveable "blooper ball" serves. Unfortunately, there would be another, "make shift" all-star game at Fenway at the end of the season.

With the Dodgers and Cardinals involved in a playoff series for the National League pennant, a team of American League stars was formed to scrimmage the champion Red Sox, with the proceeds going to war relief charities. Washington pitcher Mickey Haefner drilled Williams on the elbow hobbling him for the World Series in which he hit a very quiet .200. The Sox, accordingly, lost to the Cards in seven, as every New England school child knows only too well.

The aggravations were just beginning. Despite their near mythic offensive dimension, there would be no more pennants from the Red Sox of Williams, Doerr, DiMaggio, Pesky, Junior Stephens, Birdie Tebbetts, Billy Goodman, etc. They came excruciatingly close in 1948. In Fenway's recesses on gloomy nights, they still brood over Joe McCarthy's decision to start Denny Galehouse in the playoff against the Indians. Still rankling as well is the folly of the following year when consecutive losses to the Yankees the last weekend cost them another pennant.

THE EARLY YEARS

But if there were to be no flags there was plenty of flamboyance. The '49 team was 61-16 at home, devastating opponents. The rage lasted through the '51 season.

Some examples: Sox 20 Athletics 8, Sox 19 Athletics 0, Sox 20 Browns 4, Sox 29 Browns 4. Watching them bludgeon opponents was fine sport. Alas, life on the road was another matter. And then suddenly it was over, to be followed by the era of failed youth movements redeemed only by the stormy presence of Williams.

CARL YASTRZEMSKI

Much of the 50's seem mainly to have served the purpose of stringing together Ted's most arresting moments. There was the day he left for Korea, saying goodbye with a homer off Dizzy Trout; the day he returned by smoting a pinch homer against the Indians; the various days of his various tantrums, every one of them conveyed in sizzling headlines; his electrifying pursuit of a .400 average at the age of 38; the count-down to his 500th homer and all the other milestones in his portfolio of statistical triumphs.

Growing up with the Red Sox in the 50's you had the sense that the park, the game and all of the other participants were merely the trappings of Williams' rather Shakespearian romps; and then he too was gone.

For the record, his last olympian utterance, immortalized in John Updike's fabulous essay, "Hub Fans Bid Kid Adieu," came on September 28, 1960, and it surely cemented, thanks to Updike, much of the myth of Fenway.

It is instructive that only 10,454 people saw "The Kid" smash Jack Fisher's pitch out of the park his final turn at bat and weep as he circled the bases head down, wandering off into history without so much as a wave of the cap.

Poor Yawkey. His prodigal was gone and so were most of his patrons. The team was bad and would soon become worse. His disenchantment grew. He grumbled about needing a new, "modern" park and in 1965, he confessed to The Sporting News that he was considering selling out. The nadir was reached the last week of the '65 season when his ninth-place club drew 461 and 409 fans for consecutive dates with the Angels.

There was a subtle upward turn of mood late in the '66 season. Something new was forming around the nucleus of Carl Yastrzemski, Williams' annointed heir. Further improvement was widely expected in '67, and some few even believed they might reach the first division. But many were amused when Dick Williams, the new manager, predicted: "We'll win more than we'll lose."
